

NEW YORK HOMES OF POLICE JUSTICES.

Inspiring Records of Rapid Transit to the Bench.

MONARCHS OF OUR LIBERTIES.

Collection of Modern Biographies That Discounts Plutarch's Lives.

The fifteen police justices who are to sit in judgment this year on their fellow men and women have just been assigned to their places on the bench. In December, Mr. Thomas D. Reed, of Maine, goes down to history as the author of the statement that Congress is not a deliberative but a legislative body.

The police courts of this city are not deliberative nor even judicial institutions, as at present constituted. The whole end and aim of the justices is Speaker Reed's—despatch business. Nobody expects less justice than heretofore to be the result in 1891 of the labors of these high priced political office holders who are called judges, because, with one or two rare exceptions, they know nothing about law and care little about the facts. But a good many people agree, it seems, with those who, while not defending the system, say the taxpayers and not the police justices are responsible for it.

EDWARD HOGAN'S RESIDENCE.

There are just four police courts below Central Park, where the bulk of the population of Manhattan Island and certainly nine out of ten of the law breakers are domiciled. These four courts, to which nearly a million people are tributary, are the Tombs, Essex Market, the Fifty-seventh Street Court and Jefferson Market.

Eight civil courts of corresponding jurisdiction are situated below Central Park. In the one the liberty of the citizen is put in jeopardy; in the other, his property. Twice as much consideration seems to be shown to the latter as to the former.

What is the remedy? More police courts, less work for those now in existence? Ask even lawyers of the political organization for services to which these justices are appointed, judges bound to the justice themselves by ties of political and personal friendship, and they do not hesitate to confess that substantial justice is now denied the people of New York in the police courts for which they pay so dearly.

"Not," they say, "because the justices are unlearned in the law or uneducated men, but because human flesh and blood cannot resist the temptation to rush with indecent haste through the overwhelming mass of business and cases that are brought before them, and, in the haste, to neglect the rights of the innocent and the guilty in degrading contumacy. The police cells attached to these poor courts are crowded."

Justice Edward Hogan lives in a three-story and basement house at No. 129 West Thirtieth Street. The Hogan residence is built of brick with a handsome front porch. The most modern feature of the establishment is its stained glass doors, which are evidently several years younger than the house itself. The neighborhood is one of the quietest in New York, although the house is but a short distance from Sixth Avenue.

Edward Hogan is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed lives in a three-story and basement house at No. 129 West Thirtieth Street. The Reed residence is built of brick with a handsome front porch. The most modern feature of the establishment is its stained glass doors, which are evidently several years younger than the house itself. The neighborhood is one of the quietest in New York, although the house is but a short distance from Sixth Avenue.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

street, four from below Houston Street, three from the west side, two from the east side and one from the central part of town. Their names are J. Henry Ford, Clarence W. Meade, James T. Kilbuck, Henry Murray, John B. Smith, Andrew J. White, Charles Wolfe, Daniel O'Reilly, Patrick G. Duffy, Daniel J. McMahon, Edward Hogan, John C. Hogan, Charles J. Hogan, and John C. Hogan.

Justice J. Henry Ford resides at No. 41 East Twenty-fifth Street, not far from State Avenue. "Henry Ford," as he is called in the days when he was a "good" and as he is still called, is a man of some fifty-five years of age, about five feet tall and a half inches high, rather thin in build and still, as the word goes, in good luck. He is said to have been born at Charlestown, Mass., and to have been educated at Bradford Academy. He was a very young man when he reached New York City, where his adventurous disposition has found ample gratification. He is said to have been connected with McLaughlin & Co., safe makers, in Maiden Lane, and then to have been in a hat store at Broadway and Fulton Street, a member of the firm of Ford & Scott.

WHERE THEY CAME FROM.

Most of the New Yorkers accessible to inquiry who remember Harry Ford fifteen or twenty years ago place him in Robinson's famous sporting resort at No. 11 West Twenty-fifth Street, where he was so familiar and influential a figure that he was said to have an interest in the layout, with which he kept up a white overalls gallantry of Ford's toward a member of Robinson's family, the story went, and Ford then became interested in and at the same time resorted which Lynch & Bernstein opened on Broadway, in the Deland block, between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth Streets. The head of that firm is now Alderman Lynch. All the well-known "sports" used to go to the Stua Street.

About this time the intimacy affair was remarkable between Harry Ford and John Morrissey began to be known. The two were seen together in the streets, and Morrissey and Ford would stand arm in arm in front of the Hoffman House by the hour, while the ladies and street car drivers going by strained their necks almost to breaking to get a look at "John."

Through Morrissey Ford naturally got into politics, and once in politics the police justiceship was a natural and perhaps a laudable goal of his ambition. For six years he was Equity Clerk of the Supreme Court, and then for five years he was Equity Clerk under Hubert O. Thompson. Promotion to be a police justice came next. He was not a member of the Bar.

SOME REMINISCENCES.

Justice Edward Hogan lives in a three-story and basement house at No. 129 West Thirtieth Street. The Hogan residence is built of brick with a handsome front porch. The most modern feature of the establishment is its stained glass doors, which are evidently several years younger than the house itself. The neighborhood is one of the quietest in New York, although the house is but a short distance from Sixth Avenue.

Edward Hogan is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed lives in a three-story and basement house at No. 129 West Thirtieth Street. The Reed residence is built of brick with a handsome front porch. The most modern feature of the establishment is its stained glass doors, which are evidently several years younger than the house itself. The neighborhood is one of the quietest in New York, although the house is but a short distance from Sixth Avenue.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

Justice Thomas D. Reed is another one of the "old timers" in the police courts. He was appointed in 1871, and has since that time been a member of the bench. He is now in his eightieth year, and is a well-known figure in the city. He is a native of Ireland, and came to this country in 1840. He was a member of the New York State Assembly, and was also a member of the New York State Senate.

pair, though probably about forty years old. It is for a style of architecture common in this old section of the city, but there are very few of these old houses as neatly kept as that of the new justice. A highly polished doorknob bears the owner's name in large letters.

Justice Murray's appointment by Mayor Grant has been a surprise to many.

THE RESIDENCE OF CHARLES WOLFE.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Charles Wolfe lives in 1214 West Fourth Avenue. "The number is 1214," he is so close to the number that he has it on his door. He is said to be a good lawyer, and is a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

inches in height, weighs about 175 pounds, and wears a dark mustache, mixed with gray. Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

Justice Murray was on the police force as a patrolman in the Twenty-second precinct about twenty-three years ago. He is now a member of the New York State Bar. He was appointed by Mayor Grant in 1881, and has since that time been a member of the bench.

OLD JOHN THOMPSON'S STORIES OF WALL STREET.

Reminiscences That Were Dictated by the Veteran Publisher of the Bank Note Reporter Before He Was Stricken.

HUMORS OF THE WILDCAT DAYS.